

Abstract

Flexographic printing plates are produced by means of direct laser engraving using 5 photopolymerizable flexographic printing elements as a starting material by a process in which the crosslinking of the photopolymerizable flexographic printing element with actinic light is effected through a protective element substantially transparent to actinic light.